University Concert
Band Gives Sunday
Musical Program

Seven Men Pledged to Music Honorary During Intermission

By JAMES GIBSON
The University Concert band reached a new high in a brilliant and interpretive display of musical ability in its last appearance in the Vesper series on Sunday. John Lewis demonstrated outstanding directing ability as the members of the band followed his every move with perfect precision.

The outstanding numbers on the program were: "Fraternity Overture," Clarke; "Sven Dufa," Hedman; Overture, "Ariane," Bayer. With these three numbers the band was at its best to uphold the reputation for which it is nationally known.

A French horn quartet composed of Wesley Munger, Thomas Marshall, O. H. Harris, and Chris Argus played the "Pilgrims Chorus" from Tannhauser. This number, along with some more of the outstanding works of Wagner, will be heard on next Sunday's program, the last of the current season.

If credit were given to sections, the writer would choose the trombone section as the most outstanding. Individual credit must go to Charles Countrymen, clarinet; Percy Lewis, cornet; Chris Argus, French horn; John Feitz, bass; Bill Merton, flute; Russel McKiski, oboe, and Frank Moore, trombone. These men are truly the backbone, so to speak, of their sections.

During intermission the following men were pledged to Phi Mu Alpha, honorary music fraternity: John Fietz, Merrill Blevins, Reed Hoskins, Charles Countryman, George Duncan, Bill Schmidt, Jesse Mountjoy.

This was the last concert of the band for the year, but during spring vacation, a concert tour is planned which will include Corbin, Pineville, Barbourville, Williamsburg and London. This tour is being repeated again this year because of the widespread approval that was accorded the band on the same trip last year.

PORTABLE RADIO
POST INSTALLED

Experimental Listening Center Is Established, with Caney Junior College as Headquarters

An experimental portable radio listening center, the first of its kind in this country, has been established by the University in the "mountain" area of the state, it has been announced by the publicity office. This unique center will be under the immediate supervision of the officials of Caney College at Pippaspass, and will be taken to the more isolated mountain cabins to be left for several days at a time.

The new type center will serve the mountain homes whose inhabitants by reason of infirmity, illness, or bad climatic conditions are unable to reach the regularly established centers.

The equipment being sent to Pippaspass consists of a small box about a foot and one-half square which contains the set, built in aerial, tubes, loud speaker and miniature batteries. The entire outfit can be carried by one man as easily as he could transport a suitcase.

If the experiment in Knott county proves worthwhile, additional portable listening centers will be provided for other parts of eastern Kentucky.

"Big Sisters" For Next Year
Frosh Co-eds To Be Chosen

Petitions from women students who wish to act as "campus big sisters" for next year's freshmen women will be accepted at the office of the Dean of Women, in the Administration building. Cards will be given to those accepted as big sisters, which will be filed in the office, and during the summer, as applications from freshmen women are received, the freshmen will be assigned to their upper-classmen.

The big-sister movement was begun by the Women's Self Government association this year, under the direction of Frances Kerr, president of the association. Two hundred and fifty upperclassmen were selected to act as big sisters for the freshmen on the campus, and groups were set up, composed of ten big sisters and ten little sisters under the guidance of a faculty member. These groups met once a month at the home of the faculty adviser.

An attempt will be made this year to introduce by correspondence during the summer new freshmen to their big sisters, so that in September they will be able to meet the freshmen and help them become adjusted during the first weeks of school. Upperclassmen will be notified throughout the summer when they have been assigned a little sister, so that correspondence will be facilitated.

TALL PIVOT MAN

STATE NET HALO

Cluggish, 6 feet, 7 inches Tall, Is Predominant in 24-18 Win Over Nebo Quint

AWARDS MADE BY GOVERNOR CHANDLER

Teams, Tired from Earlier Battle, Play Slow, Listless Tilt

Corbin High School's Redhounds, led by Marion Cluggish, six foot seven inch center, withstood the grind of three weeks of tournament play and emerged victorious in the Eighteenth Annual Kentucky Interscholastic basketball melee by defeating Nebo 24 to 18 in the final game played Saturday night in Alumni gymnasium.

Cluggish scored nine points Saturday night to run his total number of markers for the tourney to 63. He was high point man of every game in which he participated.

The two finalists entered Saturday night's game by virtue of their wins that afternoon. Corbin over Paris 33 to 19 and Nebo over Inez 21 to 18. The titular game found both teams tired and worn from the terrific pace they had set in their previous games and as a result the final pace was slow and uninteresting, except for the work of the giant Corbin center, who time and time again let the smaller Nebo boys close in on him with the ball.

Gov. A. B. Chandler was on hand for both the Saturday afternoon and evening sessions and presented the trophies to the winners and runners-up at the close of the titular contest. A large gold trophy was presented to the winners and a smaller cup to the runners-up. Individual gold basketball watch chains were presented to the Corbin coach and his team, and silver ones to the Nebo coach and players. Marion Cluggish was awarded a trophy for the most valuable player to his team.

The champions placed three men on the all-tournament squad and Nebo was honored with two places. Niez, Paris and Henderson won the other three places.

The all-tournament squad selected by the newspapermen and announced by Governor Chandler was as follows:

Forwards—Jones of Nebo; S. Cluggish of Corbin; O. Ward of Inez.

Centers—M. Cluggish of Corbin and Boaz of Paris.

Guards—F. Brown of Henderson.

Exhibit to Consist of Wall Hangings of Various Fabrics

A display of airbrush paintings by Minna McLeon Beck, former head of the University Art department, will be exhibited on the ground floor of the University library for the next two weeks. Miss Beck is now a teacher of art at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The exhibit consists of wall hangings which have been done with an airbrush. The work is on such fabrics as cotton, linen, silk, and monk's cloth.

Miss Beck is one of the first to make use of airbrush technique for decorative work. The process is accomplished by joint use of a compressed air tank and an airbrush, masks being used to cover the portions of cloth which are not to be colored.

The first three forums, on "Military Service," "The Negro," and "Campus Politics," were led by Dr. Esther Cole Franklin, of the department of political science, Miss Augusta Roberts, Y. W. C. A. secretary, and Dr. Amy Vandenberg, head of the department of political science, respectively.

McVey Tells '240'
Group to Stress
Worth Not Numbers

Since the state can no longer afford to support five different graduate schools, the legislature ruled Monday that all graduate work in state supported institutions must be done at the University of Kentucky, Dr. McVey told members of the Committee of 240 at their semi-annual meeting Thursday night in the University Training school auditorium.

Dr. McVey complimented members of the organization on their work in interesting prospective students in their home counties to come to the University. He further told them that the University was more interested in getting students who would prove of worth to the school rather than in mere numbers, since the mortality among the poorer students was high and there had been some doubt whether their attendance here was worth the time and expense.

Further talks on the program were made by Robert Reynolds of Slaughter, Skid Farmer of Slaughter, and James Bessot of Shelbyville. They discussed the work of the committee in their home counties.

Following the talks was a contest, "How Well Do You Know Your University?" in which all present took part. Games and refreshments concluded the regular program.

Guignol Presents Golden Anniversary Production

By DAVE SALLYERS

Celebrating the fiftieth production of the Guignol theatre, Guignol players opened for a week's run last night a brilliant presentation of Ferenc Molnar's famous play "The Guardsman," produced by Frank Fowler and directed by Lolo Robinson.

The story concerns the trials and tribulations of a Viennese actor and his actress wife, married but six months and already in marital difficulties. The actor claims that his wife, who before their marriage was ardently pursued by many men, is again wandering from her vowed affection and is definitely wishing for another man. By discreet questioning, he finds that this time it is a soldier, or rather, a high official of some sort, perhaps a guardsman attached to the Russian embassy.

Therefore, he conceives the idea of himself playing the part of a Russian guardsman and starting an intrigue with his wife to find out if she really is still true to him. Re-

HAIL THE VETERANS OF FUTURE WARS

The recent action of Princeton undergraduates in the formation of an organization known as the "Veterans of Future Wars" is significant in two respects. It demonstrates that American youth has not lost its idealism and also that it will not allow its elders to betray it.

The movement is an example of the feeling of the younger generation in America towards war today—they distinctly abhor it and will refuse to be drawn into any conflict through the medium of entangling foreign alliances or camouflaged patriotism.

It is also indicative of the fact that American youth knows what is going on in our government today. The fact that a Congress, supposedly representing the majority of the American population, acceded to the wishes of a small minority in granting the payment of an enormous sum of money from a treasury already drained because of economic expediency, is not being regarded lightly by the thinking members of our younger citizenry. They realize that they will be compelled to pay for this folly through higher taxation in years to come and they will demonstrate their disapproval of the action at the next congressional and senatorial election.

The fact that the movement of the male students at Princeton has been followed by an organization at Vassar known as the "Association of Gold Star Mothers of Veterans of Future Wars" is evidence that a firmer assertion of the female right of suffrage is in the offing. The younger women citizenry has also awakened to protest against the manipulation of government finances by the smug agents of a well organized group of political brigands.

The initial demands of the two organizations were singular: the "veterans" demanded immediate payment of a $1,000 bonus due June 1, 1965, to each member with interest dating back ward from that date in order that the members might enjoy it before they were killed in future wars; the "gold star mothers" are petitioning for trips abroad in order that they may view the graves of their future sons. These demands appear ridiculous to the reader but they are scarcely less ridiculous than those demands made and obtained by a group of "stay-at-home" soldiers during the present Congress.

A better government is dawning; when youth combines to protest en masse against the irregularities of a political system abounding with grafters and lobbyists the order will be compelled to change. We salute the Princeton movement as the forerunner of a better day in American politics.

MUDDY WATER

American citizens are renowned for their willing cooperation in times of emergency. The recent flood which has swept eleven states has thrown upon the Red Cross demands for food, clothing and other necessities for thousands of people in the devastated areas. The Red Cross does not have sufficient funds to meet this demand, and is depending on red-blooded citizens to donate as freely as possible in order that suffering may be alleviated.

Kentucky is seldom confronted with disasters caused by floods or winds but in the present situation, finds herself in the vanguard of the helpless. Nothing can be done to divert the flood. Heavy snows of the past winter are responsible for the swollen streams. Muddy water swirls down fertile valleys, engulfing everything in its path. Iron bridges are brushed lightly away. Trains are easily overturned. Houses are lifted from their foundations, and devastation rides the waves.

Suffering is unknown to the greater percentage of our population. We must be shown the hardship and heartache that is crushing thousands of flood-stricken families. Whole cities are temporarily without drinking water. Electricity is cut off indefinitely. Homes which are left standing are filled or covered with mud. Business houses are ruined. Furniture is ruined. Families return to their home-sites to find no home awaiting them.

Considerable praise is due WPA workers. Working overtime they have done much to make and distribute bandages, clear away mud and wreckage, and to carry out the government's orders to "fight the threat to health which has arisen in many quarters where the water has receded." The attitude of this group of men has not been that of a group of "grafters who are looking for a job," as they so often have been accused of being. They are our fellow citizens, fighting for other unfortunate countrymen.

This is a real war. A war on sickness which will surely follow the receding water. It is a battle against suffering, cold, hunger. No flags are waving for the enlistment to this cause. It is a call to the conscience of all America.

EXPANSION AND RETENTION

America has always been a growing and progressing nation. Today she is still utilizing her resources and expanding in this respect: territory which was once thought to be worthless is now being converted into productive districts.

Alaska was purchased from the Russians at the close of our Civil War at something like three cents an acre. The territory is one-fifth the size of the United States, but many cities have a larger population than all Alaska. The federal government began a plan last fall whereby 200 families were taken from the dust storm regions of the West and transported to Matanuska, Alaska. Some of these families have deserted and have returned home. Others are sticking it out, and find the valley fertile and promising for future production.

The beginning has been made. All the territory of Alaska is not suitable for agriculture, but there are valleys in which several thousand more persons could earn an abundant living. The Federal government should continue sponsoring such ideas. Unemployment would be relieved if enough men would take their families to Alaska.

Agricultural pursuits are not the only ones available in Alaska. In drilling for wells, geologists have reported that coal is found near the surface. Other minerals are abundant. Gold was once found in large quantities, and a living is still to be had by working over the old mines. In sponsoring this movement, the United States is developing her territory.

We recently acquired additional territory. In the Pacific Ocean we again staked claim to three small islands. Nothing grows on these islands, but they will be useful in trans-Pacific flights of planes such as "The China Clipper." This move is largely expansion to benefit commerce.

The United States is also tremendously interested in the Byrd expeditions to the South Pole. Our interest is not merely in determining what is there, but to know the extent of land, and to attach our claim firmly to the minerals and ores that are reputed to be found there.

In the matter of our island possessions, we are fast becoming wise. It is well to allow them their own government as far as possible, and to even give them their own way in matters. It is more profitable to be just a friendly country, rather than a protector.

We have held it our duty to interfere with wars in Latin America, claiming that the Panama Canal was jeopardized. Today we have renounced the right to intervene in case of war. We no longer guarantee Panama's independence, and the countries surrounding the Canal Zone are very close friends of the United States.

Our present policy is not only one of development and expansion, but includes cultivating friends in the Western Hemisphere to the extent that war will be unlikely in the Americas.

NEWSPAPERS ARE BEST MEDIUM

It is significant that another national organization, at its annual meeting in Chicago, adopted a resolution pledging its 20,000 members to use more newspaper advertising this year. This time it was the National Retailer Owned Grocers association and members will urge their customers to read newspapers in order that cooperative advertisements will be more widely read.

Periodically, other forms of advertising are tried besides newspapers. Sometimes it is direct by mail, circulars, handbills or catalogues; recently, it has been radio. But, one by one, the advertiser returns to the newspapers. There he finds his most effective results. Newspapers have reader interest in both its news and advertising columns. They can be digested at leisure and comparisons can be made.—Spencer, Iowa, Reporter.

CORRECTION PLEASE: I noticed in my last brainstorm that appeared in the Kernel that I staggered at the Kappa dance. That my dear people was a mechanical error, I hope. I'm not so sure that it wasn't the culmination of a fiendish idea in the head of the person who copyread my stuff. Anyway, I didn't stagger not even once. The word should have been staggered.

Insofar as I have been able to ascertain, this has been a dull weekend. Names will be few and far between, so what?

Do you like to eat by yourself? No? Neither do I but it looks as though I might as well get used to the idea.

A lad once asked Mozart how to write a symphony. Mozart said, "You're a very young man. Why not begin with ballads?" The aspirant urged, "You composed symphonies when you were 10 years old." "Yes," replied Mozart, "but I didn't ask how?"

Wilma Bush was sitting in class staring out the window. The instructor, unable to conceal his curiosity stopped his lecture and queried, "Miss Bush, will you please tell me what you are thinking about?" Wilma turned slowly from the window and replied, "I was wondering why Henry VIII couldn't keep any of his wives." Now will you keep your Pause off?

See that Dryden and myself used about three of four of the same names in the columns of last Tuesday's Kernel. Now somebody pop up with the crack about "great minds running in the same channel" and you'll get socked....by Dryden.

Another amateur hour just finished on the radio. You know before long you're gonna have to be an amateur before you can make a living at all.

Prince of the Profs. George K. Brady. Does anybody want to make something out of that?

I'm passing along to you another poem. This is from the pen of Robert W. Service. No, I'm not trying to cram the stuff down your throats, you don't have to read it.

My Madonna
I hailed me a woman from the street,
Shameless, but oh, so fair!
I bade her sit in the model's seat
And I painted her sitting there.

I hid all trace of her heart unclean;
I painted a babe at her breast;
I painted her as she might have been
If the worst had been the best.

She laughed at my picture and went away.
Then came, with a knowing nod,
A connoisseur, and I heard him say
"Tis Mary, the Mother of God."

So I painted a halo round her hair,
And I sold her and took my fee,
And she hangs in the church of Saint Hillaire,
Where you and all may see.

You have to admit, anyway, that it is quite different from this quarrel by the same person:
From out of the mesh of fate our heads we thrust.
We can't do what we would, but what we must.

Hereditas has got us in a cinch,
(Consoling thought, when you've been on a "bust.")

A St. Louis newspaper says that: "An optimist is one who says that his glass is half full. A pessimist says that his glass is half empty."

An optimist is one who pulls himself up by his own bootstraps. A pessimist runs around with a sharp knife cutting other people's.

Blits picked up here and there—"The moon peeped through a cloud, looking as bleary-eyed as the habitual drunkard"...."Love so violent that you are burned to a crisp in the heat of it"...."We two lifted out of time and space into the abstract on wings of (?)...." sorry I've forgotten the rest. It was a beautiful thought.

The puerile squabbles of "Cotton-top" Wasson and "Windy" Lathrem.

Cosmopolitan magazine celebrates its fiftieth anniversary. A rather interesting review is given of its history by Odd McIntyre. Cartoons depicting the times from 1886 to 1936 are most clever.

Does it make you sore for somebody to look over your shoulder while you are in the midst of a brainstorm, trying furiously to think of something to write. Me too. Thanks for moving.

Useless remarks: "You know, it's funny—we used to correspond regularly, but I haven't had a line from him since I wrote him that I was married."...."Come out to dinner, sometime."...."You know, I've never felt like this before."

Hoi Pollui

Here is one person who is glad that the high school tournament comes only once a year. If I had to see Paris play Midway again a heart stimulant would be necessary. Looked like there were more collegians in attendance than were high school boys. Wish I had Corbin's "midget." Marion Cluggish, for one of my stooges. How that boy could get in on some of those second-story sorority house bull sessions.

We were just saying today (Sunday) how bad it would be if Chio Betty Howley were to drop out of school. The Phidelt house would have to close up on account of boys committing suicide, including such as Taber Brewer, Issham McConnell, etc., not to forget the Lawyer "Humpty" Campbell.

11 included:

Philip J. Davidson, Beaver Dam Falls, Pa., to Dorothy L. Moore, Lexington. That really must have been a case of love at first sight.

To the editor:

This is a capitalistic world. It is even more capitalistic than during the days of the war. Some countries—Italy and Germany—have carried capitalism to a point further known than any heretofore. Communist Russia does not really disapprove this contention.

It has been repeatedly pointed out that capitalism is the cause underlying all other causes of modern warfare. Walter Millis, in his "Road to War" makes this clear, and the recent Nye-Clark Senate munitions investigation proved nothing if not this. There are other factors that go toward making war, but they all seem to boil down to our economic system.

Is it not obvious that our political machine takes its orders from big business? How could legislation of this nature hope to withstand the attacks of business? In fact, after witnessing recent developments how can the proposed legislation be passed at all? But admitting that it can be done, this legislation must be repealed or interpreted in the interests of business when the opportunity for profits is once more at hand. When the "roaring abyssal beast" smells blood, can it be stopped?

This paper is not designed to propose a remedy for present evils and war in particular. It is obvious from the above, however, that the end of war will not come through legislation, but through much more drastic measures. Measures that strike at the roots of our difficulties, measures that try to raise, not feeble obstructions, but rather obstructions that will definitely annihilate our "Yellow Peril."

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JOE QUINN
Kernel Sports Editor

All the glamour and excitement of a state basketball tournament could be found in the annual joust held last week-end in Alumni gym. Not only the high school students, but the old grads and even those customers not directly connected with any one team, shared in the general attitude of tenseness. Program sellers and SuKy vendors added their shouts to the general bedlam and the whole affair took on a carnival atmosphere, only to be found at the state tourney.

One of the most colorful teams in the tournament was Inez High school which is located, according to our informant, over in Floyd county, in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. The Indians have no indoor basketball court and all their practicing is done on a dirt court out-of-doors. The whole enrollment of the school is only 45 boys and girls and most of the boys are members of the hoop team. When the snow gets real deep the team practices about once a week at Paintsville. Yet in the regional tourney, Bob Allen, Inez forward, was chosen unanimously as the outstanding player in the meet.

A Few Short Shots from the Tournament.....Coach J. Rice Mountjoy's morning prediction that his Danville team would be the first one out, was fulfilled..... Russell failed to score for the first 21 minutes of their game with Nebo..... they trailed 16 to 0 at the half..... Nebo's captain, Bryant, was probably the best of the long range shooters.....and three were plenty them on hand.....Bryant had the happy faculty of throwing through a long shot just about the time that a Nebo lead was threatened.....

Inez made their first appearance on the floor clad in Kentucky jerseys.....because of the similarity of their own shirts and those of Whitesburg.....their opponents..... Only five members of the Whitesburg team were able to get to Lexington because of a heavy snowstorm and the team played through without a substitution.....Sam Potter guarded Whitesburg's interests at the Wednesday night drawings.

Lawrence "Big" McGinnis, a Lexington boy and former Wildcat court star, coached the Hartford team which dropped a first round verdict to Manual.....The Louisville team and Paris seemed the best-coached clubs in the tourney but neither did themselves much good.....Inman of Danville registered the first goal of the tournament when he rebounded his own try at the hoop.

Marion Cluggish, the 6 foot 7 inch center of the Corbin champions was voted most valuable player to his team.....with justification.....as Corbin would have had plenty of trouble getting ahead without him.....he certainly caused opposing teams much anguish as he rang up 63 points against four opponents.....Cluggish may be a candidate for freshman basketball at the University next year.

The only team to hand Corbin a setback all season was Benham, the school which was prevented from appearing at the state tourney because of the prevalence of spinal meningitis in their district.

Because there were not enough entries, the scheduled A.A.U. track meet at Louisville was called off last Thursday. Coach Bernie Shively had intended to take 14 of his athletes down to the meeting.

Guignol Presents Fiftieth Production

izations and gives all that may be expected to the part.

Frances Reid as the actress sympathetic and social-aspiring Mama provides clever touches of humor in a convincing way, as does Ross Chepeleff as the Concierge, Isabel White as the awkward, somewhat imbecilic maid, and Walden Greenwell as the effusive Rosenstein, the creditor. Frances Kerr, as the usher, puts herself well into her part and does a fine piece of work.

The staging and the lighting effects of the production are excellent. Especially good is the "sound effect" of grand opera in the second act, which cleverly corresponds to the mood of the situation and helps build it to a climax.

An interesting feature in connection with the celebration of the theatre's fiftieth production is a souvenir program, designed and edited by Ross Chepeleff. The program contains a "calendar" of Guignol plays; a brief history of each play and of the theatre itself; articles by Eva LeGallienne, Edith Isaacs, editor of the Theatre Arts Monthly; and greetings from Governor Chandler, President McVey, Frank Fowler, and Gilmore Brown, director of the Pasadena, California, Community Playhouse.

As features of the "first night" performance, a broadcast from the theatre lobby was made over WLAP from 8:15 to 8:30 p. m.; a calendar of the fifty plays given was displayed in the lounge of the theatre and members of the cast of each play were asked to autograph the picture of the particular production in which they appeared; and coffee was served in the lounge between the acts.

Giant Center Leads Corbin to Victory

son; Bryant of Nebo; Asher of Corbin.

The tournament was featured by several major upsets. The opening day of play featured the outstanding performance of du Pont Manual of Louisville in winning from Hartford 37 to 13, and Newport's 30 to 28 decision over La-Grange. Friday both of these favorites were eliminated, Manual by Inez 21 to 17 and Newport by Paris by the decisive score of 20 to 7. After the Friday games Paris loomed as the champions but Corbin soundly drubbed them in the semi-finals 33 to 19.

In the Corbin-Nebo struggle Jones was the first to find the hoop and his basket placed Nebo in front, just twenty seconds after the opening whistle. Sampson, M. Cluggish, and Asher hit for Corbin and the Redhounds were in the lead to stay, as the first period ended.

Jones again hit and Ellison tallied from far out for Corbin shortly after the opening of the second quarter. Ellison connected and M. Cluggish tipped in one to put Corbin out in front by 10 to 6 at the half.

As the second half opened Ellison ripped in from the side and Bryant covered with a lone one. Ellison scored again as did S. Cluggish and the score read 17 to 2. M. Cluggish tipped in another one to make the score stand at 19 to 8 at the close of the quarter.

Peyton made it 19 to 11 with a long shot, and Jones, from the side narrowed the margin to 19 to 13, with five minutes remaining. Peyton on two perfect free throws made it 19 to 15, before S. Cluggish helped his team with a short shot. M. Cluggish put the game on ice with a pivot shot as two minutes remained. Bruce sank a free throw for Nebo and Bryant a long one before M. Cluggish registered the last point on a free throw as the final gun sounded.

The lineup of the first game was: Corbin (24) Pos. (18) Nebo S. Cluggish (5) F. (7) Jones Asher (2) C. (4) Corbin M. Cluggish (9) G. (4) Bryant Sampson (2) G. (4) Peyton W. Ellison (6) G. (2) Wilson Substitutes: Nebo—Bruce (1), Corbin—C. Ellison, Keck. Officials: Tehan and Bray, Xavier.

SHOP SIGHTS

By BETTY EARLE

This column will be the death of me yet! Every time I try to scout the shops, it always turns out that they scout me. I arrived home with practically flat feet.....under all the bundles and bundles.....and was even tempted to spend a check I'd cashed for someone else. So, if I request visitors in jail, please comply.

I went down to Graves-Cox first (now don't ask me hat I was doing there!) to see what Graco hats and suits are. That seems to be their own trademark for articles made especially for them. You men ought to consider Easter as well as the rest of us. Don't say it's our fault if you don't—that you can't afford it on account of our corsages you have to pay for. It's never too late to say, "Clothes make the man." Anyway, these Graco hats are made in the new semi-Tyrolean shape with a snap brim. They're in gray, blue and green, smooth or rough finish mixture, light weight and non-crushable. Graco suits are a special line with Graves-Cox. There are several styles, including the double-breasted drape with asport back and the single-breasted, two-button English model. They're made in rough tweeds of gray, tan, and bluish-green.

Then on down the street at Mitchell, Baker and Smith there were some nifty shoes for "us girls." Two types are styled there—Connie, which is less expensive and Jacqueline. You'll need some new low-heeled ones to tear around the campus in. (Winter oxfords are beginning to look pretty bad now.) You'll find them in blue, gray, beige, British tan, and white and in ghillies, sandals, kilties, cut-out, two-buckle sandals, and five-tie oxfords. The ever-popular white model with the brown saddle is still good this year.

And to go from one extreme to the other, why not try a new halo braid from the Mitchell Baker and Smith beauty salon? They'll dress you up for the Sigma Chi formal next Saturday night.

Up at the other end of town, Wolfe's has some right pet looking hats in the Campus Hat Shop. The price is right, too, especially when you hate to buy an expensive one to wear it once in this Kentucky rain. Try a Breton (They're more popular all the time) or a Robin Hood style with the clever tucked in crown and bright feather. Of if you need some patent leather shoes, get one of their shiny patent Bretons. These are the newest thing and keen if you want to be different.

If you want some really comfortable shoes, go to Collis's. Their shoes are beautifully styled and perfect fits. The pair that caught my eye was a semi-sport pump of brown kid and light tan bucko with a perforated toe and medium-narrowed heels. You'll want to wear them from now until it's cold again next fall.

Manning Addresses YW Women's Club

Dr. John W. Manning of the Department of Political Science of the University and personnel director of the state government, addressed the annual banquet of the Y. W. C. A. Business and Professional Women's club on "Effective Democracy" Saturday night.

In his address Doctor Manning said that democracy to be effective must be based on simplicity, a competent personnel and must be supported by an intelligent and articulate public opinion and interest. He quoted Lincoln's famous definition of democracy and added, "Today critics are saying that democracy is functioning, of, for and by the politicians. I insist that an effective democracy demands effective citizenship."

The meeting was presided over by William Acosta, president of the Pitkin club.

MRS. RYLAND WILL EXHIBIT PAINTINGS

Hildegard Hamilton, wife of Dr. Hobart Ryland, acting head of the Department of Romance Language, is exhibiting a group of her paintings at Centre College, Danville, from March 21 to 27.

Some of the pictures on exhibition are those which were on display at the Art Center here during February, some of which were exhibited in Plainfield, N. J., and some which were shown in the League of American Pen Women in Washington, the Pen and Brush club and on the steamship George Washington.

U. K. PROFS MAKE ADDRESSES

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser and Prof. L. J. Horlacher, assistant dean of the College of Agriculture, were the principal speakers at the Future Farmer Father and Son banquet held at Athens and Stamping Ground Thursday and Friday night respectively.

WPA Men Unearth Weekly Skeleton

The belief that the athletic field of the University of Kentucky is a prehistoric Indian cemetery was strengthened Monday as WPA workers unearthed another Indian grave, the second within the last ten days.

The Indian, who was about thirty years old at the time of its burial, was thought to have lived about one hundred years ago.

Archeology authorities were unable to determine as to which tribe or people the Indian belonged. The same style burial and lack of artifacts show it to be of the same people as the one discovered last week.

The staff of the University Museum photographed the grave after which the bones were removed to the museum where they will be placed in a large glass case in the same position in which it was uncovered.
